FOX HUNTING

The time has gone by when the puppies were walked; hound shows are over for the season and the hunters have been taken up to be gotten fit for the new fox hunting year. The Masters, huntsmen, whips and in some cases, members who don't mind doing the road work, have long since been at work getting the packs into shape to give the Fields a top season with hounds. For people realize the work which is necessary "behind the scenes" so that when the cubbing season starts, the young entry will work well with older hounds.

Some hunts began their cubbing last month while others had to wait until the middle of this month because of the unseasonably hot weather. Fall appears to be well on its way toward settling down to normal and next month will find many hunts getting out fixture cards with the all important opening meet the special event. Cubbing brings out green hunters as well as the young entry but there are still members who wait until the season is officially open before they join the Fields. There is always great interest around horse shows and hunt meetings to see who has a new horse, or what new owners and riders will appear. This is also true in the fox hunter range and it is good to see many of the seasoned hunters back to follow hounds and to watch the younger horses going through their course to determine whether they will make the grade.

In some hunt countries the brush and undergrowth make the going rather hard in the early days of the new hunt season but it takes more than blackberry bushes and low hanging limbs to stop the hunt. Fields which were not mowed during the past summer present a problem as one can never be sure about the footing; the leaves on the trees can dampen many a Melton and pink coat while the fall rains make branch and creek crossings a bit uncertain. This is all taken in stride and the veterans can help many a newcomer by pointing out spots and fields which are to be avoided.

The greater number of hunts came to a close with the spring months but during the summer there is the problem of paneling, opening new country and keeping open country which may have changed ownership. Added to this is the looming financial matter of trying to get the red ink off the hunts' books. Masters, huntsmen and whips may be changed before the new season starts and such changes are always a very upsetting matter to the hunts. In some cases the members are divided in their choice for replacements and no national election can meet with more bitter opposition than is sometimes encountered in these ranks. The matter is finally decided and the new members of the staff are in and while some people may not be too satisfied with the decisions made, a good day behind hounds is a great help in promoting a cure.

A number of hunts are making special efforts to encourage the junior riders to come along with them. Granted that many such youngsters are usually off to school not too long after the cubbing season opens, quite a number of them will be in sections where there is a hunt, or at least not too far away for the juniors to get in an occasional day with hounds. Fox hunters live to a ripe old age but there is always the necessity of introducing new blood so that the hunts can continue. Getting such material for the future of the hunts is not a simple job but it is one which can be done and done well by the adult members. It is from such a younger group that the hunts will receive their support in the future.

The fodder shocks rule their fields which have been made almost bare by the frost; the vixen has long since weaned her cubs; the morning air gets a bit sharper and the hunters are fit. Fixture cards are in the mail and the opening meet is at hand. Problems continue to present themselves to be handled but for a world which is hurtling along with such great speed, the sport and relaxation of the hunting field is a good stabilizer.

Letters To The Editor

Judge Talks Back

Dear Editor:

"You were unfair to my child in that equitation class. You never looked at her, and she won ribbons in five classes later on, and that proves you didn't look at her!"

That charge greeted my wife and me as we entered our host's house for a post-show supper party. It came from another guest at the party. She is not a horsewoman and by my book not a sportswoman. Let's, however, examine the case. Judges are inclined to shrug and remain mute when criticized and blamed.

It is my practice when invited to judge to study in detail the prize list and to re-read every section of the rule book that applies to the classes to be judged. In any case where I have any doubt, I write to the American Horse Shows Association for clarification. In the case at point here, the show was local and not "recognized" and we had a last review of the conditions as we drove to the show.

There were twenty classes to be judged between eleven in the morning and dusk. That meant pushing to finish before dark. For that reason I made fewer notations on my cards than I usually do in equitation classes. My note next to the name of the "neglected" child was one word. The word was "NO". That meant to me that hands, seat, communication, and control were so inferior to the competition that there could be no consideration of that child for ribbons among the eight or ten best. The fact that the child later relaxed enough to become a satisfactory passenger on a good moving horse that jumped almost perfectly has no bearing on the problem.

If there is any judge that fails to look at every child before him, I have never seen nor met him. We accept the responsibility of being fair and impartial, and our only satisfaction is usually the sense of a job well done. Naturally no one loves a judge, but we do give our time and years of experience to encourage the future of sport and when we must endure such charges from ribbon-crazy parents, it makes us wonder whether the effort is worthwhile.

On the other hand I warmly recollect and treasure memories of parents who have been horsemen and sportsmen and who truly understand, people like the mother at Bellewood Hunt one year who said: "My child didn't win the last class, but I certainly like the way you looked them over before you pinned them."

We appreciate it." Then where was the riding instructor at the Fairfax Hunt who said: "The winner wasn't one of my pupils, but I certainly approve of the way you judged it, and I want to thank you." Then there was the doting father at the Farmington Junior Show who said: "My youngster won the lead-line last year, and you pinned her second this year, and I think you pinned it just right." People like that make it worth the effort to continue.

Finally it isn't what is said or asked of the judge, but the manner in which it's asked. We earnestly and honestly want to help riders who are in doubt as to why they haven't won. We have no interest nor inclination to accept abuse from riders or their parents who have a chip on the shoulder and no real desire to understand.

Very truly yours,

Francis McIlhenny Stifler

Jockey Arcaro's Reunion with Battlefield Amounts To Victory In The New York Handicap

Joe H. Palmer

Like Aqueduct, Belmont got off to a poor start. The weather on opening day was hardly comparable to the sheets of rain which fell on Aqueduct on Labor Day, but it held the attendance down materially. But the first Saturday was a fine one, and the biggest crowd which has seen racing in New York since Belmont Stakes Day was out—41,383. On the first Saturday of the Belmont meeting last year, the attendance was just under 35,000. The betting last Saturday was $3,240,761, also the highest since the day of the Belmont.

There was some excellent racing during the week, and while Eddie Arcaro did not win all of the stakes, he got a bit more than his share. His reunion with Battlefield was particularly satisfactory. They had parted on somewhat strained terms, having finished seventh in the Suburban Handicap, the first time that Battlefield had ever been out of the money officially. He had finished fourth in the East View Stakes at two, you'll remember, but had been moved up to third by the disqualification, a day later, on Win or Lose, which had carried the wrong weight.

With his record once broken, Battlefield had finished out of the money on three more consecutive occasions, and then had won a sprint at Belmont, all under Bennie Green. Green was on Bryan G. in the New York Handicap, and he was in front for nearly seven furlongs. There is, however, no pay-off for this, and first General Staff, then Battlefield, and ultimately Combat Boots swarmed past him. For a while last year I thought General Staff was only a sprinter, but he's a bit more. He'd won at as much as a mile and three-sixteenths in the Narragansett Special, and he had taken two other stakes this year at a mile or more. He made Battlefield hustle all through the stretch in the New York Handicap, and was beaten only a short head. That doesn't mean too much, for Battlefield, at his best, does not seem to run hard once he gets in front. He has, apparently, grasped the fact that they pay off just the same for a head as for six lengths.

It was the first stakes victory of the year for Battlefield, which cost $4,500, as a yearling, and has now won $382,402.50. Maybe that's the reason his owner, George D. Widener, could take a vacation (from what?) in France this year. He'd just got back in time to see the colt win.

You probably have heard that the reason Battlefield was bought was that in 1948 practically all of the mares at Mr. Widener's Old Kenney farm dropped fillies, the stable being thus a little overbalanced. The idea, at the Saratoga Sales the following year was to buy a few colts; as it turned out, Bert Mulholland bid successfully on only one. But it was the right one. John A. Bell (there are so many John A. Bells that you have to number them; Battlefield was bred by II officially, actually raised by III) bred him at Jonabell (there we go) Farm, a part of John E. Madden's old Hamburg Place, and Battlefield was foaled on May 8, missing Citation's Derby by a full week.

General Staff, as I've noted, held on well, getting five pounds from the winner. Maybe I give it too much importance, because it's not so hard to pass tired horses in the stretch, but Combat Boots, a 4-year-old by Our Boots, was running like a licensed fiend in the last part of it, coming from last to third. He's by Our Boots, which wouldn't suggest a stayer, but he was running like one in this race. He belongs to Putnam Stable, which is Burton Chait, and he cost $3,600 at the same sale where Battlefield was bought. General Staff was from the same crop of foals, but he wasn't at Saratoga. Larry MacPhail got him at the Oglebay dispersal at Pimlico in November—on Armistice Day—for $25,000. Mr. MacPhail, you may remember, was plotting even deeper on the original Armistice Day, in 1918; he and some friends were figuring ways and means of kidnapping Kaiser Wilhelm II out of Holland, and they almost did. He was younger then; if he tried it now he'd make it. General Staff, which flies the maize and blue of

IS PROUD and Jockey C. McCreary in the winners circle after the 46th running of the Matron Stakes. The 2-year-old miss is a Brookfield Farms homebred by Fairy Manhurst or Hampden—We Hail, by Balladier and is trained by E. I. Kelly.

Mr. MacPhail's alma mater, the University of Michigan, has won $106,850. The Kaiser would have been better publicity, but not worth as much on the open market.

I think I suggested, here or somewhere, that Greentree was fairly handy at holding the lists against Calumet, having used Guillotine and Capot to cheat Ben Jones out of some legitimate commissions. At any rate, Greentree was right on the job in the Jerome Handicap in mid-week, Tom Fool scurrying off with $17,100 which Mark-Ye-Well had been confidently expected to get. He had a ten-pound pull on the Calumet Colt, which finished third, but then the margin was seven lengths, which leaves the thing somewhere close to even.

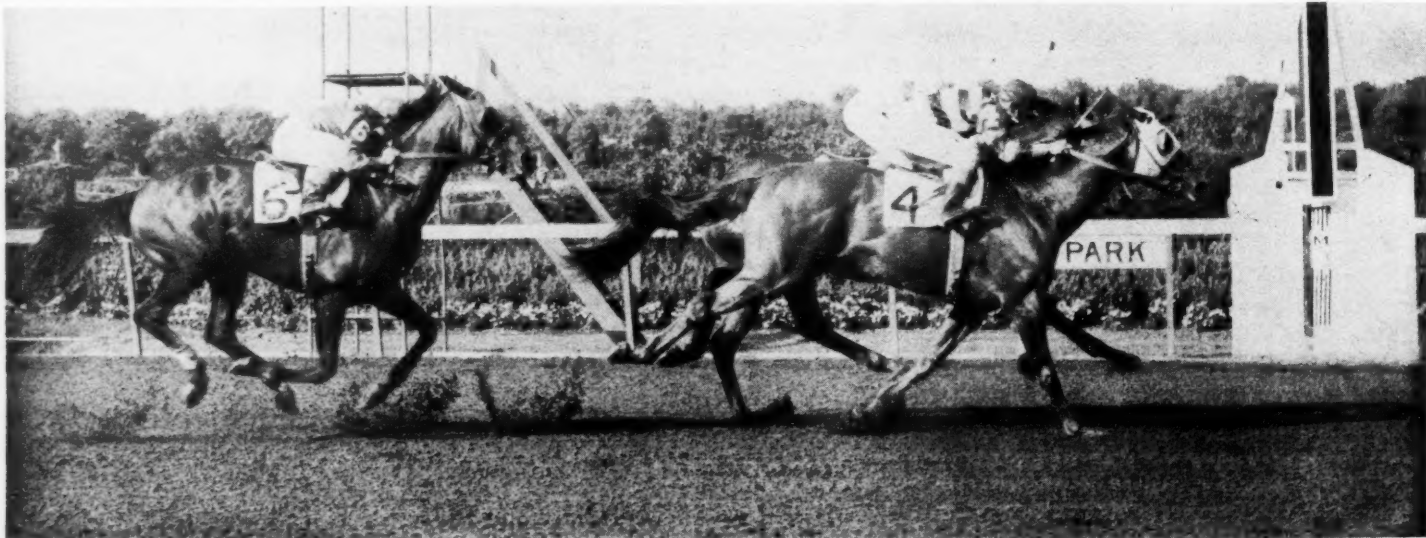

Tom Fool had previously won two races this year, including the Wilson, and had three seconds and a third, but he hadn't come close to his 2-year-old form. His luck isn't good; before the Jerome he'd cast himself, and had hit himself when he was helped up, and a leg filled. He might be back in time for the Pimlico Special. Even if he doesn't, he hasn't had an unsuccessful year, having won an even $50,000. His two-year total is $205,960.

I would just as soon not have any opinions about the Matron Stakes. At Saratoga I thought Flirtatious was a pretty good filly, and subsequently at Aqueduct I thought Grecian Queen might be a better one. Neither did very well in the Matron, nor did Hula, which had some excuse because she came back apparently a little lame.

The winner, at all events, was Is Proud, from the Brookfield Stable of Harry Isaacs. At this point I have to get something off my mind. Harry Isaac is a personal friend and I wish him well. Also I admit the right of any man to name his horse anything he pleases. But "Is Proud,"—well, damn it. The fact that her dam is named We Hail utterly fails to reconcile me to it, because I think that might have been a mistake, too.

Anyway, Is Proud has won three out of five starts and got two seconds, and now has won $48,660. For that sort of money I guess I could get used to the name. But since I don't have the money, I haven't.

G. D. WIDENER'S BATTLEFIELD (No. 4), Jockey E. Arcaro up, wore down L. S. MacPhail's General Staff to score by a head in the New York Handicap—Covering the 1½ miles distance in 1.48 2/5 over a fast, but wet, track. The time was 3/5ths slower than the track record, but the same margin faster than Hill Prince's New York last year. The 3rd horse is Putnam Stable's Combat Boots, with Bryan G., Alerted, To Market, and Hall of Fame finishing in the order named. (Belmont Park Photo)

Oedipus Tosses Into Oblivion Course Record
He Posts 3.39 1/5 For Broad Hollow 'Chase

Spectator

'Tis said in racing "that weight will stop a freight train", but apparently Oedipus never heard this expression for in the Broad Hollow Steeplechase on Thursday, Sept. 18th, Mrs. Ogden Phipps' great jumper carried 160 lbs., to his third successive victory in this stake, and in doing so, relegated to oblivion the course record set in 1926 by Fairmount under 147 lbs., and later matched by London Town with a mere 139 lbs.

This mark of 3:40 was set over the easier privet jumps, so the 3:39 1-5 set by Oedipus is all the more remarkable. He won like a champion, although his winning margin was a "long nose". Jam, the runner-up, under an impost of 154 lbs., went by him a stride or two past the finish, while 20 lengths behind these two, The Creek and Hot finished 3rd and 4th respectively.

It was a fast race from flagfall to finish, with The Creek taking command early in the race. Hot about a length away, forcing the pace, while Oedipus with Jockey Albert Foot aboard, lay in 3rd position.

For almost a turn of the field, this order continued, and these three opened up a good margin over the balance of the field. Turning into the far side the last time, Jockey Earl Phelps started to make his way forward on Jam, while Hot showed signs of tiring. Midway down the far side, Oedipus displaced Hot in 2nd position, and set sail for the pace maker. Going to the far turn Oedipus jumped into the lead, as Jam ranged up to challenge. Around the last turn, these two drew out from the others, and at the penultimate jump, Jam was a scant length off Oedipus. Here, the victim of a slight bit of bad racing luck, Jam lost a little ground, but came on again rounding into the stretch.

At the last jump, Oedipus was given the call by almost 1 1-2 lengths but gave signs of tiring under the terrific pace. Meanwhile, Jam, slowly but surely was cutting down his margin. Apparently not at his best over the muddy Widener strip, Jam again lost ground to Oedipus, but after that, each stride brought him closer to the winner. In front of the mutual board, Jockey Albert Foot literally threw the reins at Oedipus, in a desperate attempt to hold his advantage. Jockey Phelps using his whip to best advantage still closed on the winner, but the "race ended too soon" for Jam. The finish was so close that it had most of the spectators guessing until the photo was examined.

Then to further keep them on tenterhooks, Jockey Phelps lodged a claim against the winner, claiming that he had been interfered with at the 11th jump, the one on the final turn. Eighteen minutes later, the stewards confirmed the finish, and Mr. James Park of Monkton, Md., presented the trophy to Mrs. Phipps together with Mr. Phipps and Trainer Pete Bostwick.

Earlier in the week, Mrs. Marion Scott's Sea Legs returned to the racing wars after a 2-year layoff, and under a well judged ride from Jockey Evan Jackson, scored by 3 lengths. Sent to the front early in the race, Sea Legs was given a slight breather midway down the far side, permitted Genanoke to go by him briefly, and then regained command to win with something in reserve. Genanoke, run differently than usual, was all but choked for the first few fences, then was set down but was no match for the winner when the real test came. Later in the week he was a starter in the Broad Hollow, and under the same tactics, was never in the "hunt". Two-and-a-half lengths behind Genanoke, Night Patrol took 3rd money, well in the van of Monkey Wrench and Cherwell which completed the field in that order.

On Tuesday, experience was the victor over class, when Battle Wave, an erstwhile plater, took the measure over Benbow in a hard fought hurdle race at a 1 1-2 miles. Benbow, reportedly a $15,000 purchase by Jack Skinner for the Rokeby Stables of Paul Mellon, went off favored in the betting, while Battle Wave and War Candy, the form horses, drifted to better than 2-1. Ridden by Jockey T. Field, Benbow was restrained early, then after appearing able to pull his rider's arms out, was let down, and went to the front. A series of costly bobbles however took a lot of run out of him, although he was still in front approaching the final jump. Battle Wave jumped into the lead at this point, while War Candy, making a strong challenge at the time, fell at this hurdle, and in the run to the wire, Battle Wave pulled out to win by 3 lengths. Benbow was next, and then it was 20 lengths back to Touristette.

The following day, the favorite won the jumping race, and his stablemate was 2nd, although it was a bit of an upset to the jumping fraternity. The winner was Bayard Tuckerman's Blandystone, and John M. Schiff's Phiblant was 2nd. These two were clearly the best of the others after *Aufakt dropped out of contention early, and then *Irish Easter, while in a contending position, tired in the last quarter. Mrs. Stephen C. Clark, Jr.'s Extra Points, a contender in this company, appeared sore before the race, but was claimed by E. Belfi for $4,000.

Rigan McKinney's Antagonizer made it 3 straight this year by romping home on Friday in a 1 3-4 miles test over hurdles. Run on a well soaked infield, Antagonizer with Jockey Adams in the saddle, made every jump a winning won, and crossed the wire with 6 lengths to spare. Never having run on a soft field before, Antagonizer was overlooked in favor of Allison Stern's *Salemaker, a good performer in this sort of going. While the latter made up ground in the closing stages, raced Scrappy and Enon into defeat around the final turn, he was no match for the winner. Enon and Scrappy fought it out to the wire, with the former getting the show position by half a length.

Second Annual Pony Sale Sponsored By Breeders' Assn.

The Maryland Pony Breeders' Association held their 2nd annual consignment sale at the Maryland State Fair Grounds, Timonium, Md. on September 5. Milton J. Dance, Jr., the young auctioneer who has done such a good job at the Saratoga yearling sales, along with George Swinebrod, handled the gavel.

Topping the sales was Harry T. Peters' registered black Welsh stallion, Woodholme, Second Fiddle. G. Edel went to $425 to secure this 5-year-old.

This sale offers practically everything in the way of ponies; broodmares and foals; young ponies; old ponies; stallions; proven sires and even a pony, cart and harness. Several pony breeds are represented and it is one opportunity for people interested in securing ponies to see the many types so that they may make a choice.

'CHASING PROSPECT FOR SALE

Mr. William C. Hunneman, Jr. who is giving up his entire stable, has asked me to offer for sale at $1,000 his yearling filly, now boarding at Grange Farm. The filly is a black with two white hind ankles, is well-grown, without blemish, and has conformation good enough to show. She is not registered, being by Colony Boy out of *Stream On, an imported Irish mare by J'Accours out of Silverstream by Druce, she out of mare by Drinnmore—all excellent jumping blood. Mr. Hunneman bred *Stream On to Colony Boy in 1950, the object being to get a top chaser and I believe this filly fills the bill.

Oregon's Proposed New Amendment; Success Of Ex-'Chasing Jockey

Easy Mark

In the forthcoming election the state of Oregon will have on its ballot an amendment called, "Constitutional Amendment prohibiting Lotteries, Bookmaking, Pari-mutuel Betting and Animal Racing."

The proposed law is worded thus: "No lottery shall be authorized by the legislature or otherwise in this state, and no ticket in any lottery, pari-mutuel betting on the result of horse, dog or other animal racing, or vehicle racing, shall be bought or sold within this state, offered for sale, nor shall bookmaking be authorized within the state, nor shall any gambling device be legalized or the remedy, penalty or punishment therefor be in any way diminished."

After going over the words carefully, it makes one think of the prohibition amendment, which was foisted not only on one state but the whole country. This amendment also got its start by first being adopted in several states. It is also evident that the proposed law was conceived by a shrewd calculating mind, or group of minds. The thinking behind it was just as narrow as it was calculating, as lotteries and bookmaking are now illegal in the State of Oregon, and racing conducted under the pari-mutuel system of betting is licensed by that state.

If the proponents of this law had any sense of justice about them, the amendment would simply read, that pari-mutuel betting on horses and/or dog racing be abolished. Then the people would know what they were saying aye or nay to. The whole thing smacks of a "snake in the weeds" proposition.

The people in the State of Oregon can do whatever they wish when it comes to making the above proposal a law. It is their privilege. But they had better think twice before they cast their ballots, because it is plain that the people behind this move did not use any clear and unprejudiced thinking when they concocted the brew.

Regardless of how many laws are made in Oregon, none of them will stamp out a man's enthusiasm for a good horse race, on which he can wager a few dollars. If they don't bet on the races in Oregon they will bet on those in California or some other state. A law will not stamp out a man's enthusiasm for owning or breeding a good race horse, and if he can't race him in Oregon he will take him to other states. The State of Oregon will not only lose the tax derived from the pari-mutuels, but its farmers will also lose the revenue that tracks bring to them through the purchase of farm products and through the sale of horses bred in the state. How many jobs will be at stake or how much money will be diverted from Oregon into other states, which will welcome it, is something that the voters of the state should give serious thought to.

Maybe Oregon does not need the monies coming from racing, but if it does, the voters had better take everything into consideration. Their state could become as blue-nosed about racing as the great "Keystone State of Penna." which does not permit the sport under the pari-mutuel system, but adds one cent tax to each soft drink purchased and a penny or two on other such items sold in the state. How much tax money it loses by not having racing, no one knows, but it is a well-known fact that its neighboring states, New York, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia and Ohio, derive a sizeable portion of their pari-mutuel revenue from the highly industrial but non-racing state of Pennsylvania.

To the racing and breeding game as a whole the loss of Oregon as a state in which racing is conducted may not mean much. However, those interested in the sport should take heed and make a concentrated effort to keep Oregon in the fold of racing states. For if groups of blue-nosed, narrow-minded citizens can band together to bar racing in Oregon, after it has once been legalized, then the same can happen in any state, no matter how powerful are the racing interests in that particular state.

The name Leo Charron may or may not strike up a responsive cord in the minds of steeplechasing and hunt meeting enthusiasts. The young man was a licensed steeplechase jockey who seemed always to be going along for the ride. If he ever visited the winner's circle in a sanctioned race in three years of riding over jumps, it has eluded this researcher. We remember the young man from his many visits to the office during the off season when he was exercising or schooling horses in the vicinity. We must say that his lack of success did not lessen his enthusiasm for the sport of racing nor did it sour his disposition as this young man seemed to get a kick out of anything pertaining to horses.

The former 'chasing jockey has finally made his mark in the sport, but in a way he never dreamed of. In the days when William Lester was also in Middleburg learning the rudiments of riding under the able tutelage of Trainer Jimmy Smith and the boys were kidding each other about their ability, or lack of it, to ride, Leo Charron kiddingly told his companion that, "The day you start to ride, I'll hang up my tack and be your agent." Well it happened that apprentice jockey William Lester got his start and an agent was needed. With some help from other agents Leo Charron learned the ropes slowly and the next thing he was Jockey Lester's agent.

Sometime later Agent Charron bumped into Jockey Pete Anderson, whom he had known for a long time. The jockey asked him what he was doing, and he replied that he was now the agent for Jockey William Lester. Jockey Anderson allowed as maybe he needed an agent too, and asked Leo to help him.

Today ex-'chasing jockey Leo Charron is the agent for the above two jockeys who are going great guns. On the second day of the Belmont meeting Jockey Lester scored a double and now looks like one of the most promising apprentices in the business.

Agent Leo Charron's only reply to all this is, "How lucky can you get?"

New York turf and sports writers in recent weeks have drawn up lines and joined camps on the question of off-course betting. The boys have even resorted to calling each other names. Some of the reading is very interesting and some of it, to say the least is slightly boring. We are beginning to wonder if readers wouldn't rather see a blank space in the paper.

If some of the boys don't cut out the nonsense, they will shatter the faith which a few readers still have in sports writing. The conclusion was reached here a long time ago that most Americans realize the majority of the sports writers have a certain amount of space to fill "come hell or high water" and therefore anything found in that space should be perused with a grain of salt, and for amusement purposes only.

$288,429 Worth Of Thoroughbreds In one Race; Silver Wings To Stand In Massachusetts

Karl Koontz

You've all heard of the prodigious sums of money expended in the production of plays on Broadway and movies in Hollywood, but let me introduce you to the initial cost of another great production.

If you had been at Belmont Park on Wednesday, September 17 and witnessed the running of the 4th race, you would have seen a parade of horses that represented an outlay of over $288,429. Twenty-eight 2-year-olds paraded to the post—11 of them were sales yearlings purchased for $131,100, while the remaining 17, if evaluated at the average which their sire's get attained in the yearling sales of 1951, were worth approximately $157,329.

Of these 17, 11 were home-breds and a great many would have brought far more than the average value set on them, so that the figures quoted on them may be a little weak; however the remaining 6 had changed hands privately so that no accurate amount could be determined. Therefore the average on them is possibly a little strong—so that the figure of $157,329 is a pretty close estimate.

The fact remains that when these 2-year-olds entered training they represented $288,429. Every day since that time one must add the cost of maintaining these youngsters at the track. Feed, veterinary, transportation bills, trainer fees, jockey fees, and dozens of items involved in bringing them up to winning form keep accumulating.

Nor does that figure include the cost of maintaining the plant at which the owners can race their horses and hope to get back at least a part of their expenses. Also think of the number of salaries of people employed at a race track who do not come in direct contact with horses—what a line could be formed at the unemployment office if racing were eliminated;

In this 5 1-2-furlong dash down the Widener shoot, the winner was the $35,000 yearling purchase of Brookmeade Stable, Pasco, by *Rico Monte—Lea Lark, by Bull Lea. The brown colt romped home by 4 lengths over H. E. Jackson's Caesar Did. His share of the purse was $2,600, leaving him owing his owners $32,400 on his purchase price.

So, if you're a racing enthusiast and occasionally lose a few bucks, don't cry too loud, you can consider that you have just become a "voluntary" backer of the sport of racing.

May 5, 1950 was the day Battlefield won the 2nd division of The Youthful Stakes at Jamaica, thereby earning his 4th straight triumph and his 2nd stakes victory. In the field of 10 2-year-olds that followed the chestnut son of War Relic—Dark Display, by Display under the wire, were two greys which were each to outrun the inbred colt before the season was over—Liberty Rab and Silver Wings.

Liberty Rab, a grey colt by Doublerab—Lady Liberty, by Liberty Limited, was making his 10th start, but weakened in the closing stakes of this 5-8 mile run and finished 3rd behind Count Turf, which was destined to win the Kentucky Derby the following year. Silver Wings was making the first start of his career, but was never in contention at any stage of the "game".

Now in 1950, there were 458 horses which during the season accounted for one or more stakes races on the flat offered on the North American continent. Thirteen of these stakes horses were grey in color—but only 2 were 2-year-olds—Liberty Rab and Silver Wings.

In his 2nd start two weeks later, Silver Wings made amends, but then he was running among 2-year-old maidens. The grey colt, under Glen Lasswell's direction, raced close to the pace and then drew away to win easily by 3 lengths. Following in his wake over the sloppy 4 1-2 furlongs were *Northern Star, Away Away, Elixir and others.

The 3-4 mile Great American Stakes at Aqueduct on June 28 was his 3rd effort under silks. Again Glen Lasswell had the mount, and he broke the grey colt on the front end and kept him there. Battlefield kept breathing down his neck but failed to best him by a head—the race being run in 1.10 4-5, just 2-5ths off the track record.

Over the remainder of the season Silver Wings added to his list at 2, a 2nd in the George Woolf Memorial to Sir Bee Bum; a 3rd in the Sanford to Big Stretch and Nullify; and a 3rd in the Grand Union Hotel Stakes to Battle Morn and Royal Mustang. Even though defeated in these races he nonetheless was good enough to outrun such as Bernwood, Bugledrums, Ken, Ruhe, Royal Mustang, Nullify, and Mohammedan.

Silver Wings first attracted attention in the sales ring due to his light grey coat, and dark grey mane and tail, but his pedigree held the buyers' interest longer and he was finally "knocked down" to Leslie Combs II for Mrs. Graham's Maine Chance Farm. The sum involved amounted to $21,000, which made him the 3rd high priced son of *Mahmoud sent through the sales ring in 1949. The honor of being the highest priced son of the grey C. V. Whitney stallion went to Steadfast, which cost Brookmeade Stable $32,000; while at the C. Oglebay Estate sale in Maryland, L. S. MacPhail laid out $25,000 for a bay colt out of *Ulvira II, which he named General Staff.

Silver Wings, is out of the Blue Larkspur mare Irvana, which won 2 races at 2 and as a broodmare has produced the winners of 22 races and $144,980 to the close of 1951. Her produce include the stakes winners No Strings, by Occupation and Okana, by Okapi. No Strings won the Modesty Handicap at Arlington Park from Two Lea and Dandilly, covering the 6 furlongs in 1.10; while in the Princess Doreen, Two Lea got her revenge, while No Strings outran Alsab's Day for the place position. Okana set a track record at Longacres in going a mile distance in 1.35 2-5, as well as winning the Argonaut, Bay Meadows, Bay Meadows Inaugural and numerous other handicaps.

Now comes the word that Silver Wings is being retired to stud. The 4-year-old son of *Mahmoud—Irvana, by Blue Larkspur will replace *Rhodes Scholar at Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.'s Little Sunswick Farm, South Westport, Massachusetts. The grey stallion will stand for a fee of $400 with return. This horse should be a big boost to New England's breeding industry.

SHOW CIRCUITS

Not Too Much Attention Is Paid To The Personal appearance Of Riders In The Ring

Nancy G. Lee

World War II has been blamed for the rapidly fading formal attire and although no one has mentioned it with regard to the show ring, perhaps the downhill trend started during the "duration". At that time it was hard, and in some cases impossible, to replace worn out riding clothes, boots and tack, making it necessary to use what one had, regardless of the patches.

The "duration" has long since passed and in 1947 The National Horse Show was one of the first shows to tighten its boot straps and require riders to appear in the ring with coats and derbies or caps included in their attire. This show is a big event and consequently its requests carry weight but at other smaller shows, either the requests were not made or the circumstances were ignored.

Turn back the years—not too long ago—and show stables were the scene of great activity as boots were shined, tack was cleaned and everything was made spic and span for the coming show. Early in the morning tails and manes were braided and after the classes that day, they were taken down, a new job having to be done every day. The result was an eye pleasing display of well turned out riders and horses.

Bring the calendar up to date and the hunter and jumper riders fall far short of the riders in the gaited and harness classes. True the latter people have far less classes in the east, at least, in which they participate, but this lack of classes could well be a reason for them not giving special attention to their appearance. This isn't the case as one would be pushed to name off hand any member of the gaited or harness people who ever went into a ring without having himself, or herself, and the horse putting on its best appearance. Their members who not only ride but drive have two complete attires, one for each division, yet when they hang up their tack to take over the reins in a harness class, they are equally dressed to fit the occasion.

The hunter and jumper riders have a great many more classes and during the course of a day or an evening, they enter the ring a number of times. At the larger shows they usually fulfill the requirements of evening with regard to their attire but in the morning and afternoon, the situation quite often changes.

One or 2-day shows, or even 3-day outdoor shows show the greatest laxity in this respect. Even the ladies are not above reproach. In hunter or jumper classes, although it happens more often in the latter division, the gentle sex comes into the ring with sleeves rolled up, no hunting cap or derby and in some cases, wearing a rather dilapidated pair of breeches and brown field boots. In a hunter class riders over the outside course and in the ring do not even put on a coat, much less a head covering. During the season when it is extremely hot, some of them even disdain a tie. One isn't too comfortable with coat, derby, etc., but as a courtesy to the sport and to the people who are putting on the show, such discomforts could be endured for one class at a time.

The horses do not present the same picture of years gone by. Of course, neither has the groom situation remained the same. Nowadays the cost of having a horse braided daily would be prohibitive to the small owners but couldn't these owners learn to do the job themselves so that their entries would make a better appearance? If the tack is only given a quick going over, this looks much better than to let it stay as is, showing the remains of grass on the bits and sweat on the reins. There should be a certain amount of pride which would make one want to have his best foot forward when he and his horse perform before the judges and the spectators.

One show in particular sticks strictly to the letter. Coats must be worn and that is final. The attitude of this show was a bit in the extreme when one rider in an open jumper class had a clean round but was penalized 3 points for not wearing a coat. The matter of attire should have been settled before the horse and rider came into the ring.

No one would think of going swimming in a base ball suit; neither would one go skiing in a lacrosse outfit. Why then can't the outstanding sport of showing horses be treated with respect and courtesy by the riders?

C hagr in Valley Hunt

One may look far and wide across the country for the perfect place to show horses, and having once seen the beautiful Chagr in Valley Hunt nings' beautifully mannered Swift Spirit with Miss Penny Jennings aboard.

Seldom are all horsemen given to praising a horse to the skies, but certainly there would be few to doubt or challenge the greatness of Mrs. Myron E. Merry's Kathleen N. A complete record of her triumphs during her years of showing would fill nearly a volume, and almost every time she enters the ring, "Flopsi" is the one to beat. Bearing out this statement is the fact that out of the 7 classes in which she was shown, she won 5 of them, plus one 2nd and a 3rd. Another mare, the well known Icecapade, was ridden brilliantly by Miss Penny Jennings to be named reserve working hunter champion.

A new memorial trophy in honor of Kathleen York White and Thomas Holden White, for the high point horse of the show, was placed in competition this year. A tribute to two of the most ardent and admired followers of the sport, the coveted trophy went to Kathleen N by virtue of her having accumulated a total of 26 1-2 points. Since the beautiful trophy is in honor of two such fine sporting people, it was heartwarming to see the great mare win it for the first time.

Genesee Valley Breeders
Association

The quality was there for the 37th annual show but there was a definite decrease in the number of entries.

The first day was brood mare and foal day. All the Valley stallions were well represented but the *Isolator and Which Mate get were outstanding. This is *Isolator's first crop in the Valley and it was interesting to note that these foals all have plenty of quality. It was an *Isolator filly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hadcock which was eventually pinned grand champion of the show. Which Mate needs no introduction; his get has been in the winning show business a long time—Bright Mate, Lanika, Bright Lad and the youngster which has done so well this season, The Angel, well represent him.

The stallion parade started off the second day. As the 11 horses go into the ring it is time for residents of the Valley to count their blessings; it is most remarkable that such a variety of equine talent is gathered in one small area. Alton, by Haltal, won the class and in this hunting country, a better sire would be hard to find. He is a big, black horse with the kind of topline that hunting people want—he is strongly made and should sire many good horses.

The two classes under saddle were small and it was a *Tourist II 3-year-old which won the suitable class. The rest of the day consisted of yearlings, 2 and 3-year-olds, the most outstanding of these divisions being a 2-year-old by Grail Bird, owned by John Murphy. This brown gelding has plenty of quality and as a young hunter prospect, he has quite a future. In the 3-year-old division, it was to note that a very nicely mannered *Tourist II gelding won the championship.

Helping Hand

This year there were several changes made in the prize list. Jumps ing classes were eliminated because of the difficulty of getting entries the day after North Shore. There were always a great many cancellations as was still the case this year with the hunters. In place of the jumpers, a number of children's hunter classes were added and a complete saddle seat equitation division.

The extra day of showing didn't seem to bother Wee-3-Stables' The Angel. After being pinned reserve young hunter at North Shore on Saturday, he was shipped to this show the next day. Mrs. Dave Kelly did her usual competent job and the two accounted for all three conformation events in which they performed.

The horses of Mrs. L. M. Gibb, which were ridden by Michael McDermott and Miss Kathleen McKinney, monopolized the remaining tricolors. Her old campaigner, Halethorpe, placed reserve to The Angel in the conformation ranks. In the working division, a tie resulted between Mrs. Gibb's Shipwick and Patrick McDermott's steady going Flagstone. Since Flagstone had already been shipped home, the award went to Shipwick.

A grand hunter championship was awarded to the horse winning the greatest number of points in both divisions. As a result The Angel added to his laurels which now consists of 5 championships and 5 reserves.

In the horsemanship classes, Miss Joan Parker won her first championship of the season. Miss Gail Fenbert, who has won all she could in the saddle seat division, has turned to riding the hunter seat and chalked up the reserve.

For the second show in a row, Cavcote Farm's Blackout took the measure of larger horses and was pinned junior champion over Kasachabar Stables' Dance King.

Moving to smaller stable this fall, and must dispose of the following horses which I'd like to keep but simply can't because of space:

COQUO, grey gelding, 6 years, 17.1½, by Coq d'Esprit, no papers but definitely thoroughbred type. A qualified hunter, big beautiful safe jumper, excellent mouth and manners, very good conformation, absolutely sound and without a blemish. A top horse for hunting or showing SCOTCH PLAID, grey thoroughbred gelding, 4 years old, 17.1½, by Coq d'Esprit out of Irish Tweed. A tremendous weight carrier, but unusually light on his feet. Never hunted or shown but schooled to jump. Folds well, and is very clever. Placid, quiet disposition, he is the most promising working hunter we've had in years, and we hate to let him go.

SUSIE'S MARK, grey thoroughbred mare, 14 years old, 16.3, by Gray Marquee out of Peacock. A lady's horse, hunter trials champion snaffle mouthed, a lovely ride under any circumstances. She's still hunting sound, and has produced three fine foals.

MARK'S COUNT, chestnut thoroughbred gelding, 4 years, 16.1, by a son of Reigh Count, out of a granddaughter of Coq Gaulois. Fast, easy mover, big bold jumper, afraid of nothing; superb conformation, absolutely sound. An unusually promising prospect for brush or flat racing.

KNOX, chestnut thoroughbred gelding, 16.1, papers lost, age about 10. Has been regularly hunted by whipper-in for two seasons. Fast, handy, will jump anything, is absolutely sound, and is a tireless horse. Good whip horse or possible hunt race prospect. Because of age will sell for a song.

ten their dates mixed. The heat (over 90) and dust were more typical of July than mid-September. A little of the rain which has plagued the show for the last few years, would have been more than welcome.

Entries in the young and green divisions were of a far greater quantity and quality than in recent years. As a result of the high caliber of competition, top honors were fairly well distributed among several eye filling types. Winner of the young championship and green reserve was Dr. A. C. Randolph's good jumping Full O'War, ridden by Gene Pillion. In the young stake the big, brown gelding had performed, with a knockdown, before it was discovered that the course had not been lowered to the required height. When he performed a second time, the 4-year-old jumped well enough to win the class and tie with Raymond Burr's owner-ridden Whirl Pin for the tri-color. Full O'War was awarded the decision on the basis of conformation.

Foxhill Farm's Taki had been on top in the young division when he had the misfortune to pull down the green board fence in the stake. However, he did not repeat the mistake in the green stake. Besides his natural ability, the lovely mannered 3-year-old grey has the added advantage of being ridden by Charles Lewis, one of the best when it comes to schooling and showing young horses.

Previous to the working hunter stake, no horse had won more than one blue ribbon, and many were closely bunched as far as points were concerned. However, that class proved the undoing of many, as rails flew in all directions and refusals were numerous. Scene of most of the trouble was the in and out. Halfway through the class it was discovered that a baby carriage and a collie dog were in the woods beside the fence. Several times the dog ran out as a horse approached. Dogs and baby carriages notwithstanding, Fairview Farm's piebald gelding, Penrod, Raymond Burr up, came through with his usual consistent round to win the class. This assured him the championship over Mrs. Edward C. Spalding's Timber Dot, the riding of whom was shared by the indefatigable Raymond Burr and the owner.

The situation in the conformation ranks was the same as in the working. Of the 16 horses shown in the stake, 8 had at least one first place to their credit. It's seldom that top awards are so widely spread. Most consistent of the winners was Miss Jean Cochran's Naute Mia, ridden by his owner in the amateur events and Carl Schilling in the others. He claimed his second championship in as many weeks over Alta Vista Farm's grey gelding, Blue Ridge, ridden by Hugh Wiley.

Why Wait, a 6-year-old chestnut gelding belonging to Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Merkel and ridden by Gabor Foltenyi, accounted for the championship in the special jumper division. This is a recently developed competition for horses which have not won a blue at an A or B show. Although Why Wait did not win a class, he placed consistently. The tie for reserve which occurred between Fairview Farm's stake winner, Sun Briar, and Wee-3-Stables' Jack O'Lantern, was decided in favor of Jack O'Lantern by the toss of a coin.

The third day of competition for the William S. Blitz Memorial Trophy is always the highlight of the Piping Rock show. The very formidable 5'-0" fences provide plenty of excitement for the crowd. Once again, Fairview Farms and Raymond Burr were in the forefront as he guided Ping Pong to only 1 fault and the blue. As a result of his win, the piebald was tied with Harry D. Ryan's Bedford, ridden by Joe Green, with a total of 12 points for the 3 days. Both horses jumped the course again and Bedford's 2 1-2 faults were good enough to win the trophy. Although he lost that, Ping Pong won the overall jumper championship by a very convincing margin over Bedford.

In the junior division, Miss Kathleen McKinney, riding the well made Halethorpe, scored a decisive victory over George Morris' owner-ridden Game Cock. George picked up another reserve behind Miss Sara Ann Cavanagh in the horsemanship division.

Westmoreland Hunt

The 25th annual show was held at its new grounds, Gross' Farm on Union Cemetery Road. Due to limited stabling facilities, the show was a 1-day affair instead of their usual 2-day event. It was regrettable that the open jumper division had to be cancelled due to the lack of entries.

The Western Pennsylvania Hunts Challenge Trophy which has been competed for throughout the 1952 circuit of the western Pennsylvania hunts shows, was presented to Mrs. Henry J. Stringer's Senator with a total of 8 points.

HUNTSMAN RECOVERING

Right after the Arapahoe Hunt season ended last spring, Huntsman George Beeman had a bad spill and broke his neck. However, he's been exercising hounds for some time and the members hope he will be able to hunt as usual. As one of the professional whips, Stu Morelli said to a member, "All you'll have to do this season is stay behind him—he won't know whether you've made a mistake or not!" This may not be too true as it's been the belief of everyone connected with him for some time that Huntsman Beeman has eyes in the back of his head!

RINGSIDE AT PIPING ROCK

Raymond Burr is fast becoming the Lou Gehrig of the horse show world. Besides riding at least 12 horses at Piping Rock, he figured in every preliminary and 6 championship or reserve awards.... The most colorful sight and coveted horse was Miss Eleanor Sears' flashy piebald, the 15-hand Sugar Plum. The bouncy, Irish gelding was ridden by Miss Heather Bailey, a visitor from Ireland.... The biggest disappointment was the omission of the exhibitors' luncheon in the picnic grove. The $3.00 per plate substitute was hardly the same.... For the second week in a row, Mrs. Del Guercio had a brilliant round on her Golden Hill to win a leg on an important trophy. This time the pair retired the Henry G. Vaughn Trophy for ladies' hunters.

The somewhat outmoded "no schooling edict" was still in effect. Since shows as big as Devon permit schooling, it would seem that Piping Rock is remaining somewhat behind the times, especially in view of the somewhat inadequate schooling jumps available.

There was a slight mix-up when those persons tied for 2nd, 3rd and 4th in the F. E. I. class drew for the three places. Six persons and the steward, Eric Atterbury were involved. One of the slips blew away and another draw was necessary after Joe Green announced that Steward Atterbury was 2nd, on the first draw.

Otis Trowbridge, as usual, was doing ten things at once. A little girl asked him when the next horseman-ship class would be, just as Ringmaster "Honey" Craven gave him the results of a class over the walkie-talkie. At Announcer Trowbridge's "Right away, dear", Honey's surprised "What?" could be heard without benefit of any loud speaker.—Tanbark

EXHIBITION TEAMS

Because of the scarcity of good jumpers in Nebraska, this year the Boomer and Ackerman stables of Lincoln have attended two county fair horse shows in the capacity of exhibition teams. Although listed on the programs as competitive classes, the two stables shared expenses and awards. Their only competition at both fairs were post entries of stock horses with a natural ability to jump, but none of these could negotiate the barriers set up for the Thoroughbred jumpers.

On Aug. 20, jumpers from the two stables were shown at the Nuckolls County Fair horse show at Nelson, and on Aug. 25 at the Pierce County show at Pierce.

The courses at both shows were Modified Olympic with the barriers supplied by the Boomers and the Ackermans. As the riders considered these shows as training fields for their horses as well as exhibitions for the spectators, the courses were rather stiff, a fact which led to the defeat of the leaping stock horses which had obviously never seen a hog back, an oxer, or an in-and-out, nor had they even been asked to attain a height of 5 feet.

The horses and riders completing the courses at the two shows were: War Jester, Jim Boomer; Anonymous, Lowell Boomer; Elinor's King, Dr. G. A. Ackerman; Ronald Ginger, Ed. S. Ackerman. Of the four all but Anonymous are registered with the Jockey Club. Elinor's King and War Jester are slated to be shown at the American Royal.—Louis Ackerman.

JUNIOR ACTIVITIES

Judges at The Pony and Pet Show at Wayne, Ill. were Cynthia and George Carter. This pair is doing a fine job at the Milwaukee Country Club where they have a tremendous junior interest flourishing. Since Milwaukee has given up their hunt and sent their remaining rounds to Oak Brook, many wondered if the interest in horses would remain. With the Carters doing such a top job, there is no longer a question in anyone's mind.... Wally Wakem has sold out his interest in the Onwentsia Stables at Lake Forest to Ed Hilliard. The Hilliards are doing their usual bang up job up there.... Oak Brook has really started a good junior hunt, so that, all in all, the caliber of riding among the juniors and the interest and enthusiasm are very high indeed.—L. B. C.

SARATOGA SALES RECORDS

Tyson Gilpin, president of the Fasig-Tipton Company has some interesting facts on this year's yearling sales at Saratoga. The most important statement made by Mr. Gilpin was the fact that the sale, "attracted a welcome number of new buyers representing 15 percent or $300,000 of the total paid for 336 yearlings offered by 62 consignors throughout the country." This is a definite proof of the popularity of racing and new buyers are always a welcome addition to the sport and the breeding industry.

The totals were the highest since the war for the Saratoga yearling sales, an annual August event in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., since 1917. According to the Fasig-Tipton president this was, "the best lot of yearlings ever to come before an auctioneer in Saratoga or, for that matter, anywhere in this country, if not the world." Mr. Gilpin added that "traditional consignors and purchasers have further established the strength of the American Thoroughbred market and, by so doing, have stimulated much new interest and participation through ownership, in the racing industry."

To us it looks like the 1952 Saratoga Yearling Sales had everything—plenty of buyers, plenty of good yearlings, plenty of color with a lot international flavor and just everything that it takes to make a successful sale. The youthful president of Fasig-Tipton, in all probability, is sorting out and cataloging all the ingredients which made up this year's vendues in order to offer the same bill of fare for the consignors and buyers next year.—Easy Mark.

EQUINE VIRUS ABORTION

In response to inquiries as to the recommended time for beginning to vaccinate broodmares against equine virus abortion, and the recommended dosage, Dr. E. R. Doll, of the Department of Animal Pathology of the University of Kentucky, recently suggested the following:

Vaccination against equine virus abortion should begin during the latter part of September or early in October. A series of three doses of vaccine is suggested. Each dose consists of 5 cubic centimeters of the virus abortion vaccine prepared by the University. If the series of vaccinations is begun in late September or early October, the three inoculations should carry most mares through March or April, when the majority of foals are born. A fourth dose may be given to late foaling mares, though it is not desirable to

Elizabeth Bell Paints Children Out Hacking With 4-Footed Friends

Elizabeth Bell, the talented equine artist from Rochester, New York, has put a wealth of friendly charm into her painting entitled Five Friends that appears on the cover this week. The atmosphere of companionship and friendly trust is beautifully displayed in the painting so that the whole composition is very much a thing of the spirit. It embodies far better than words can tell the enjoyment that children and animals gain from each other in a trip across the countryside, any countryside anywhere, just so long as the friendship and confidence is there.

In the picture the artist's son, Jimmy, aged 10, is shown up on Sir Gay, a green pony, and Barbara is mounted on Jack A. Dandy. Barbara is 7 now and when she was 4, she started riding Jack which was bought in Virginia in 1949.

She and Jim both learned to ride on Jack. Barbara won three blues in lead line classes when she was 4 and 5, which has been the extent of her showing. Jack, however, has been shown to many blues with Miss Ann Barry and Miss Barbara Hastings up, both in pony hunters and pony jumper classes. This year, Miss Hastings, who learned to jump on him, won not only the pony jumpers, but the junior jumpers against horses and also a class around the outside course, also against horses.

The old collie, Mynah, has been part of the family since she was a few weeks old, 11 years ago. She was so protective of the children and accompanied them everywhere, and didn't trust any of the horses, so in the paddock when Jimmy was taking care of them, she was circling them constantly.

vaccinate mares which are within two to three weeks of foaling, unless the danger of infection from equine virus abortion is known to exist.

Up until last year, the standard recommended vaccination procedure consisted of administering three one-cubic centimeter doses of vaccine, given intradermally at weekly intervals, beginning early in the fall.

The new vaccination procedure was evolved from experiments with six different dosages used on 756 mares last year. The experiments showed that the 5 cubic centimeter doses of vaccine, given subcutaneously, give a better antibody response than smaller doses given intradermally. The optimum dosage appears to be 5 cubic centimeters. No apparent advantage was gained through using larger doses. The vaccine now being used is prepared from the lungs of aborted fetuses. Lung tissue appears to contain more virus than liver tissue, Dr. Doll said.

Research conducted on the mares last year, providing the basis for the present recommended vaccination procedure, was conducted under the auspices of the Grayson Foundation.

16-Goal Autumn Plates Tournament Won By Brandywine Quartet

Bill Briordy

With Al Parsells contributing 7 goals, the Brandywine quartet of Philadelphia carried off the annual 16-goal Autumn Plates tournament on Sunday, Sept. 14, by turning back a strong Meadow Brook four, 12 to 6, in the final round match at Bostwick Field, Old Westbury, L. I.

The day was a banner one for Parsells, 8-goal star, who hooked up superbly with Ray Harrington, a standout at back. Last year Parsells was also a member of the Brandywine four to capture the 16-goal honors.

The Brandywine poloists throttled the Meadow Brook team at every turn. For one thing, Parsells split the posts in every period. He and Harrington, reinforced by Charley Leonard, Jr. and James McHugh turned in a tremendous job.

Harrington, a Texan, who makes his home in Philadelphia, scored 3 goals. Leonard stroked 1. The 1-goal handicap Brandywine received at the start was superfluous. While Harrington did a bang-up job for the victors, Parsells was easily the best man on the field. His shotmaking was something to behold.

Parsells hit one goal in each of the first three periods to help his team to a 5-2 half-time lead. The brand of polo exhibited by both teams was excellent throughout the well-played match. The Philadelphia quartet connected for 7 goals in the second half while keeping Meadow Brook to 4.

The Meadow Brook side of Joe Schwartz, Philip Iglehart, Alan Corey and Henry Lewis turned in a fine performance, but the losers just didn't have the shots to match the winners. Iglehart came up with the prettiest goal of the game when he hit on a five-stroke run in the sixth period for Meadow Brook's final goal. Iglehart and Lewis—a strong back—each tallied twice for Meadow Brook. Corey and Schwartz scored once each.

With Herb Pennell showing the way with 6 goals, Zenas Colt's Pittsfield (Mass.) Polo Club won the National Inter-Circuit championship by turning back the Milwaukee Shamrocks, 13 to 7, at the Blind Brook Club, Purchase, N. Y. Riding with Pennell and Colt on the winning side were Charley Wheeler and Joe Poor. Colt and Poor each hit 3 goals, Wheeler getting 1.

Mike Wacker, Bill Ylvisaker, Tom Cross and Hugo Delmar formed the Shamrocks. Pittsfield enjoyed a 9-6 bulge at intermission. Ylvisaker, former Yale star, led the Milwaukee four with 3 goals.

Archie Young was the high man with 4 goals as the Bethpage Polo Club stopped the Jericho quartet, 9-6, in the second match of the Bethpage Fall Plates tournament at Bethpage State Park, Farmingdale, L. I. Frank Fox, Les Turner, Young and Walter Scanlon swung mallets for Bethpage, while Arthur Kaye, Ruiz Palmer, Vernon Kipp and Bill Stoothoff made up the Jericho side.

Exhibitors Brave Summer Heat At Eglinton Trials

Broadview

Hot summer sun beat down on the Eglinton Hunter Trials held September 13 at the F. K. Morrow Farm, Willowdale, Ontario, Canada. The junior division of the trials provided the strongest competition and a new young rider Grant Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Allow Me Outstanding At Lake Oswego Hunter Trials In Oregon

Showbird

The 4 1-2 miles over 17 jumps at the Lake Oswego hunter trials at Oswego, Oregon, are a real test for any hunter but Allow Me, good going mare owned and ridden by Miss Geraldine Pearson, actually made it look easy. The mare, jumping very boldly, completed the course in good time and in fine condition to win the C. R. Miller perpetual trophy. In 2nd place was Hugh B. McGuire's Coxe, ridden by Mrs. David C. Meyer which finished in equally good shape.

Among the new hunters at this show was Orphan Lad, a sharp looking black 4-year-old, owned and ridden by Burt Janis of Davis, Calif. Dan Creary showed his beautiful 3-year-old chestnut, Spanish Hill, purchased this past spring in Virginia. Orphan Lad won the green hunters over the outside course while Spanish Hill was awarded the blue in model hunters.

Combined with the hunter trials and held inside in the arena the preceding Friday and Saturday evenings, September 5 and 6, was the Lake Oswego Hunt Fall Horse Show with 4 hunter or jumper classes each night.

Highland Riding Academy's Charcoal with Gerry Smith up, collected all 3 blues in the jumper classes while Coxe was pinned working hunter champion of the show.

Kink Scores 100% At Annual Harford Trail Ride In Md.

Mary Clark

The Havre de Grace (Md.) Chapter of the Harford Pony Club held its 5th successful Harford Trail Ride on Saturday, September 13.

Humphrey S. Finney did a superb job of judging the ride. His scorekeeper was Grason Hopkins and timekeeper was William Rasche. Dr. George C. Lightcap was the attending veterinarian while the blacksmith was Harry F. Gaither.

The trail ride has created much interest since its start in 1948 to the extent that Aubrey Bodine and William Stump of the Sun papers asked if they could cover the ride for their popular stories in the Sunday Sun's brown section.

Horses and riders were fed and rested for an hour at the half-way mark which is the farm of Mr. and Mrs. William Amoss. Along the ride punch and water were given to the riders while there were many running streams where the horses were watered.

The day being a hot, sunny one, made the ride seem exceptionally long. The trail ride, however, turned out to be the familiar endurance test as it is known. Perhaps to refute some theories, it was not a case of Darwin's famous survival of the fittest since all mounts and riders survived, thus proving themselves capable.

King, just recently sold by Miss Molly Lee to Miss Sonja DuBay, was the only horse to score 100 percent for the ride.

For the second year Bobby Bell won the horsemanship trophy awarded to the rider who showed the best horsemanship throughout the ride.

SUMMARIES

20 miles for small ponies—1. Tony Pony, Betty Carson.

35 miles for large ponies—1. Cotton Jim, Mary Kral; 2. Miss Flip, Nancy Williams; 3. Apache, Beverly Rickey; 4. Fellow, Wendell Clayton.
